Steenson Chosen As Interim Student President/Regent

Ryan M. Norris
Staff Writer

Brandon Steenson had one of his college dreams fulfilled when he won the interim student/president regent election on Tuesday.

Steenson has been elected Interim Student President/Regent until Will Marunda takes office in January.

"It's always been a dream of mine to be the president of the university," Steenson said. "I've been on student government my whole college career and I'm really happy to represent the student body for this short time." Steenson will meet the new student government at its meeting last night.

Low turnout at the ballot box had Steenson win with twenty-three votes.

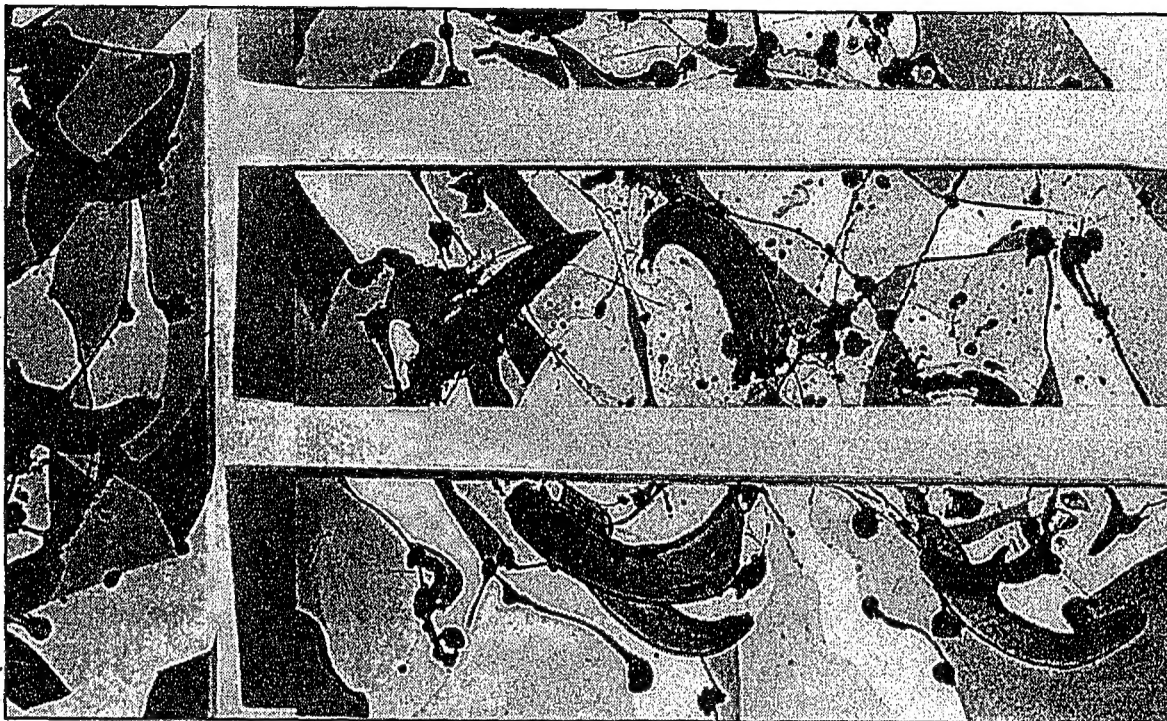

A total of 35 people voted giving Ann Wilson, Steenson's competitor five votes. The rest of the votes consisted of write-ins and a no vote offered submission.

Former student president/regent Jon Shradar was removed from office last month due to disciplinary action.

"I think in a special election like this, we didn't know what to expect because the position had such a short time frame, we didn't go all out to publicize this," said Tara Knudson, adviser to student government.

Wilson could not be reached for comment.

Student Art ...

Steve Houlton

UNO students present their thesis in the form of works of art. "Why I Never Left You," by Jean Olson, and several others are on display in the art gallery of the Weber Fine Arts Building. The exhibit opened today and runs through Dec. 17, and is the second student exhibit to be shown in the gallery this year. The exhibit Presenting their thesis are Kristofer Harzinski, Jean Olson, Bobbye Wise Overman and Richard Saxton. The exhibit will feature a combination of paintings and sculptures.

Friends of Japan Bake Sale Raises Dough For Party

Jessica Perea
Staff Writer

The Friends of Japan Bake Sale was just one of the many events the new group on campus has held to get its name out.

On Tuesday the student group sold cookies, cupcakes and other treats.

It was the first bake sale for the organization.

Kaori Seki, president of the organization, thought they had a good turn out.

"It was our third event from the start of the semester," Seki said. "I think if we get our name out a little more we will have even greater success."

The new club was started this semester and holds two meetings each month.

The committee meets on Wednesdays at 8 p.m. and consists of eight people. The general meeting is held once a month, and has about 15 people that attend it.

Junior Mi Chu Yi said the club is a way to meet new people, and is a good way to get involved.

"Everyone has fun and you don't have to be Japanese to be in the organization," Yi said. "Anyone who is interested is welcome."

The organization had a picnic at the beginning of the semester and is looking forward to its next event, the New Year's party.

The proceeds of the bake sale benefited the graduation party for the Friends of Japan students.

Christmas Comes Early For Lied Transplant Children

When the Lied Transplant opened, visitors and staff noticed that one thing was missing-toys. The Nebraska Health System Organ Recovery Services and the House Officers Association Alliance are sponsoring a toy drive for pediatric patients at The Lied Center.

The toys will be for children while they are staying at The Lied Transplant Center to help make their stay a bit more bearable. The toys are intended for children ages 0 to 18 and should be portable so they can be taken to the patient's room.

Toys or monetary donations for the purchase of toys can be sent to the NHS Organ Recovery Services Department before Dec. 31.

All checks can be made payable to the University of Nebraska Medical Center-Organ Donation Education. For more information call Jackie Preheim at 559-8634.

Red Ribbons Help Students Celebrate Sober Driving

Katie Ratcliff
Staff Writer

In spite of the good time, happiness and joy that come along with the month of December, two groups at UNO are trying to prevent some of the bad times that also accompany it.

December is National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Month and a special month to tell students the dangers of driving impaired by drugs or alcohol. UNO Alcohol and Drug Education and UNO Health Services will sponsor the activities held during the week of Nov. 29 through Dec. 3.

Students can pick up a red ribbon to tie on the antenna of their cars to show their support for driving unimpaired. The free ribbons can be picked up at the table in the Milo Bail Student Center, in the Student Health Services office, at UNO Counseling Services or at Campus Security in the Eppley Administration Building.

All week UNO students can stop by the holiday tree for life in MBSC to pledge not to drink and drive during the holiday season.

On Nov. 30 the groups will be hosting a vir-

News Briefs

Abuse Survivor to give Two Lectures Nov. 19

UNOmaha's Women's Studies and School of Social Work will sponsor two separate lectures by noted author Sue William Silverman on Thursday, Nov. 19. Silverman is the author of "Because I Remember Terror, Father, I Remember You," a memoir of sexual abuse at the hands of her father, who was the chief counsel to the secretary of the interior from 1933 to 1953. She is the winner of the Associate Writing Program's Award for Creative Nonfiction.

Art Exhibit Next Monday and Tuesday

In honor of Native American Heritage Month the InterTribal Student Council will have an art exhibit in the Nebraska Room of the Milo Bail Student Center on Nov. 22 and 23. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

Turkey Trot Registration

The 5th Annual Turkey Trot, a 5-K (3.1 mile) run or walk, will be held Sunday at 10 a.m. Turkeys will be given to the top 5K male and female runners in each age division. Registration costs are $10 to run and $5 to walk for faculty, staff, students and HPER activity cardholders. The cost is $14 to run and $7 to walk for the general public.

Kwanzaa Celebration Dec. 1

Mark your calendar for the 4th Annual Kwanzaa Celebration at UNO on Dec. 1, at 7 p.m. in the Milo Bail Student Center Ballroom. Kwanzaa is a week filled with spiritual, festive and joyous celebration for the oneness of life. Come celebrate and/or to learn more about this African-American holiday. Tickets are $2 for students, $3 for faculty/staff and $4 for the general public. Tickets will be available starting Nov. 15 in the student center business office. For more information or if you are interested in volunteering, please call 554-2711.

Punctuality A Necessary Evil For Most Students

Marilyn Kolar

Staff Writer

Friday morning has finally rolled around. The annoying buzz of that dreadful alarm runs through your head. Once again you reach across the warmth and comfort of your bed to reach out into the cold air outside of the cozy blankets.

As you press the snooze button with every bit of strength in your arm, thoughts run through your mind: how can you sleep just five more minutes without being late or completely sleeping through that tiresome 8 a.m. lecture. Maybe if you stay in bed five more minutes and wear a hat you will still make it on time to class.

Many students are all guilty of this act of laziness day after day. They are familiar with bargaining and searching for extra minutes before appointments and deadlines.

Early morning class is not always the excuse for being late.

Many students find it difficult to walk from class to class without running into that friend who has not been seen in weeks. It never fails to happen when crossing from the Durham Science Center to the arts and science building.

Punctuality is a hard characteristic to find among college students.

"I always need to grab something to drink or check something one more

Decline in Male Enrollment Expected to Continue

College Press Exchange

CHICAGO (TMS) — A decline in male college students is expected to continue over the next decade as more young men bypass school for the promise of making it big in the tech industry or on a professional sports team.

Women, who in 1970 made up fewer than 45 percent of college students, have turned the tables. Now men are in the minority. Census figures say men make up 51 percent of the nation's population. But by 2008, they'll constitute 42 percent of college students, researchers for the U.S. Department of Education predict. The statistics apply across all geographic, economic, ethnic and racial lines.

Among possible reasons for the drop in men's enrollment is the declining presence of formally educated adult males in their lives. Researchers point to the rise of households run by single mothers and the high numbers of women teaching in elementary and secondary schools.

Also not helping, many educators say, are media images of millionaire sports superstars who make it into professional leagues without degrees and of cutting-edge Internet pioneers who didn't graduate from college, like Microsoft Corp. co-founder Bill Gates. In a statement, Georgia Gov. Zell Miller said educators must lure male students back to college and the fuller intellectual life it represents — even if sitting in class reading "Beowulf" doesn't seem as exciting as collecting $75,000 a year to build Web pages.

GW Students Sweating Sting

College Press Exchange

WASHINGTON, D.C. (TMS) — When federal officers wielding search warrants showed up in a dormitory at George Washington University last week looking for fake IDs, they didn't have any trouble finding them — or the student who made them.

Students, figuring they'd be caught sooner or later and wanting to avoid additional legal troubles, gladly handed over their hallmate's handiwork. The student who made the fakes also was quick to cooperate. According to the GW Hatchet, he turned in the equipment he used and a computer database of more than 100 digital pictures of his clients.

"If the feds are knocking on my door, they probably have enough to can me, so I might as well cooperate to the fullest," the accused student, speaking under the condition of anonymity, told the Hatchet. School officials and D.C. authorities also are not releasing the student's name because he is a juvenile.

Despite his effort to come clean, police charged him with juvenile forgery, and the university put him on interim suspension and barred him from the campus. Students who bought the fake IDs have been granted amnesty from federal prosecution but still may face university sanctions. If they turn in their fakes by the end of this week, they'll get off with only a warning, "but if they hold out and are caught later, they'll face sanctions that are more severe," said Barbara Porter, a spokeswoman for the university.

A campus judiciary board made up of students, faculty and staff is expected to review charges against the operation's ringleader and hold a hearing within two weeks, Porter said.

Expulsion is an option, she added.

Police said additional arrests are likely.

Students living in the dormitory said it was only a matter of time before authorities caught on to the fake ID sales. They told the Hatchet that the student charged with making the bogus New Jersey and Maine licenses didn't make much of an effort to keep his work a secret. They said he often approached them with samples, posted pictures on the dormitory's Web server, left the door to his room open as he worked and sold his product to anyone willing to pay.

It appears authorities indeed monitored the operation before moving in for the sting. The student charged with the forgeries told the Hatchet that an officer in his room the day of his arrest was the same man who visited him a week earlier asking to purchase an ID.

Northwest Passage: Espousing Bigotry

A Column
by
Nathan Moseley

Recently Nebraska Receiver Coach Ron Brown has been under fire from many different areas of the community for what he said on KGBI 100.7 FM Sept. 24.

Brown has been depicted as a gay-basher and a homophobic by the media, as well as the homosexual community. However, what Brown said has been switched around and taken out of context to make him look like the bad guy.

Now the burner has been turned up a notch because of the Jimmy Creech trial, which deals with the union of gay couples. Add to that the coverage by ESPN, the situation is really starting to heat up.

Basically the main point that Brown was trying to get across about homosexuals was that you shouldn't hate the people, you should hate their sin.

He was in fact saying that Christians should love homosexuals just the same as any other human being, but that Christians should not accept what they do as being okay.

Brown did not say that Christians should go around with banners stating that "God hates gays." He was actually expressing that there should be compassion for homosexuals and that Christians should "win them to Christ."

Many people have argued that Brown has used his position as a Husker coach to gain a platform to express his bigotry across the airwaves.

First of all, he was on a Christian radio station, one I might add that has the same views as Brown. If I'm not mistaken expressing one's view was still allowed under the first article of the Constitution.

What he said may not be "popular" with the majority of society, but that doesn't take away his right to express his opinions.

The KKK recently held a march in New York City, even though many people were against it.

So if the KKK can close down the streets of New York City to show their views, shouldn't that make it okay for one man to state his views on a Christian Radio station?

There were also people calling for him to lose his job. What right do people have for trying to make someone lose their job because they don't agree with what he says.

Few people understand how much of the Nebraska coaching staff hold similar positions. Some of the coaching staff, including Brown, speaks at Christian retreats and conferences expressing their religious views. Everyone knows that they are coaches for Nebraska, so should they be fired as well?

Even Husker Legend Tom Osborne talks many times about his religion and his faith. I bet if someone were to ask him how he felt about the subject he would have a very similar answer.

These same people that complain about Brown "preaching" over the air waves are also the same people that complain that they should be able to speak out and hold marches for themselves.

Does this seem like hypocrisy to any one?

If they get there way most of the Husker staff would be fired, and then these same people would complain that the Huskers are 4-7 on the season.

Now is where I would enter my own opinion about the issue. How I would support Brown and his answer and why I believe many of the same things as he does. I would start hitting the reader with biblical verses and share why I think it is wrong.

But I don't want to be viewed as a bigot and homophobe using my position on the Gateway as an opportunity to shove my unpopular views in the face of the reader.

Cape Canaveral Construction Comes Crashing

NASA has blown up the fabled launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla. to make way for a new line of Atlas rockets which don't need launch towers. The debris, seven millions pounds of steel, will be recycled.

I understand the Pentagon has plans to purchase the steel for $4.2 million, and melt it down to make six new toilet seats and a hammer.

Shaving Shelved For Sure?

The world's largest manufacturer of razors, Gillette, and Bristol-Myers Squibb have joined forces in creating a cream that stops the growth of facial hair in women. It's called Vaniga. Studies show no major side effects, and the cream appears to work on men as well.

How would you have liked to been at that Gillette board meeting? "Let me get this straight — you want to develop a cream that our customers can use so they will never have to buy our products again? Okay."

Obviously, Their Mother Did Not Teach Them To Share

Frances and Harold Mountain spent a day in court earlier this month, sitting on the floor, sorting through stuffed animals. The couple had divorced four months ago but could not agree as to how to split their Beanie Baby collection, so a judge ordered them to divide the collection one by one in his presence. ## Yes Virginia, There Is A Big, Bad John

The State of Virginia is looking for a new state song. A total of 339 entries have been submitted, including "Virginia," a song written by Jimmy Dean. Fair enough. But the sausage maker has gone even farther — donating money to the campaign treasury of one of the judges, and donating pork patties and notebooks to school kids so they can write the judges telling them how much they liked the song. Dean's young wife, Donna has even been photographed hugging one of the judges.

I like my bribery just like my sausage — extra spicy.

Fried Flamingoes And Grilled Gnomes

According to University of Nebraska-Kearney security personnel, an unknown person is setting fires at Randall Hall. Actually, he/she is setting fire to ... lawn ornaments at Randall Hall.

Speeders Beware!

The Omaha Police Department is continuing its crackdown on I-80 speeders and will do so through the Thanksgiving Holiday. So far this year, more than 1,700 citations have been written for speeders. According to Meg Fricke, police spokesperson, the highest speed to date has been 127 mph.

Obviously, someone late for class.

Conflicting Headlines

One headline read, "As Many As 50,000 Polygamists Live In Utah." A second headline read, "Study: Salt Lake City Best Place to Live."

I'm not sure how the two correspond. I've always heard that the definition of marriage and polygamy is the same: one wife too many.

Now, Where Did I Put Those Kids?

Teachers at Doniphan School in Doniphan, Neb., apparently forget they had sent two third-graders to timeout, leaving them alone in a locker room and unchecked throughout the afternoon and well after school was dismissed for the day. School Superintendent Del Prindle said, "It does appear they didn't check on them as they should have."

The teachers will be required to write, "I will not lose my students" 500 times on the blackboard.

Alcohol In Moderation May Be Healthy; Abuse Still Isn't

Opinion by Laura Sanchez
Staff Writer

Many students like to pick up a beer or alcoholic drink for a good time on the weekends.

But there have been a lot of studies which prove that long-term alcohol consumption or abuse can interfere with bone growth and replacement of bone tissue, resulting in decreased bone density and increased risk of fracture.

According to Alcohol Health & World Report, alcohol also has effects on major organ systems like ulcers of the stomach, inflammation of the pancreas and cirrhosis of the liver. Other devastating effects occur in the nervous system, which can be permanently damaged, causing blackouts, hallucinations and extreme tremors.

There is evidence that even moderate drinking during pregnancy can damage the unborn child.

These are some of the reasons why over or abusive consumption of alcohol is not recommended.

In contrast, US News & World Report states that the Mediterranean diet recommends drinking one or two glasses of red wine per day, not distilled spirits or beer.

The message seems to be that alcohol in moderation can be helpful while over consumption may have dire effects.

Cola Wars Follow Us Into The Next Century

Candace Horton
Staff Writer

Millions of dollars have been spent to make sure that the public has an opinion on which cola is best — Pepsi or Coca-Cola.

"They are two market leaders and there is no room for them to grow, except into each other's market," said marketing professor Jonna Holland.

For those of us on the UNO campus, Pepsi is the ONLY choice that is given to us. Of course, there is a choice of Mountain Dew or water, but the Pepsi bottling company provides all those too. It seems to fit in with what some students thought.

"Coke makes me puke," said senior Lisa Greeno. "It's too acidic and I hate it."

Senior Ben Hamilton is a Pepsi drinker as well. "I like Pepsi because it has a sweeter taste. I also didn't feel like my insides were turning to rust when I drank it."

In the early 80s, Pepsi set out to prove that people actually preferred Pepsi to Coke by establishing the "Pepsi Challenge." So began the infamous cola wars. For those who do not remember, here is a recap of what happened.

Cola representatives set up in a supermarket aisle with a two-liter of each brand. They filled cups with Pepsi or Coke and a generic brand of cola. Customers chose the cola they liked best.

"It was the case of a number two company taking on a number one company. Pepsi thought that they had the advantage on taste," Holland said. No one really knows who won, but it proved that some people didn't care what they drank.

So what do the companies say about their products?

"We have been in business over 113 years and we have a quality product. We also have an uncompromising commitment to safety," said Megan Thompson, a Coca-Cola consumer information hotline operator.

Kim Jones at the Pepsi consumer relations center said, "I like (Pepsi) because of the taste. It's not as sweet or acidic as Coke is."

Some students do care what they drink and refuse to drink Coke, even when it is the only thing offered.

"If I go into a restaurant and all they serve is Coke, I will get something like Dr. Pepper or Sprite. I can tell the difference, and I will not drink Coke," Averill said.

But Coke has loyal drinkers too. "If it's a hot day and I have been working hard, then I have to have a Coke," said senior Tracy Dewitt.

For the UNO students who like Pepsi, it is fortunate that our university is populated with such vending machines. As for the rest, you might have to hike a little way to get your soda.

PUNCTUALITY

time before I leave," freshman Lara Adkins said.

Students find that time management is a quality needed to make it to class on time.

Writing down the agenda each day almost always guarantees success.

Planners of all sizes are sold at any discount store or office supply store. Finding a place to remind yourself of the events that take priority in your life is a good step to take.

Many people set their clocks fast. Five minutes will usually do the trick. Ten to 20 minutes may be needed for those who never are where they need to be when they are suppose to be there.

Between class, work and constant errands, the important things are usually easier to be on time to. A lot of the time it depends on who you're with and where you are going.

"When I'm with my kids, I'm late. If I'm by myself I'm usually on time," said sophomore Traci Schuette.

It's important to everyone to be punctual. It jums that finding the time to work on this characteristic is scarce.

Dogma Short On Inspiration

Movie Review by John Lunday

Staff Writer

A lot of controversy has surrounded the release of Kevin Smith's latest film, "Dogma." Religious pundits claim that the movie is blasphemous and contains insults to the catholic church.

In his own defense, Smith has claimed that the movie is a personal exploration of his catholic beliefs.

In reality, the film doesn't properly fit either of these classifications. True, "Dogma" does contain its share of controversial moments. But the film ultimately leans toward the tamer side. In fact, one might be apt to use another word to describe the film - boring.

"Dogma" revolves around the attempts of two fallen angels, played by Matt Damon and Ben Affleck, to get back into heaven. The two have found a loophole that will allow them to do this. It requires them to make a journey to a church in New Jersey.

Seeing as their re-entry into heaven will cause the end of the world, someone is recruited to stop them from making it back. That person is Bethany, an abortion clinic worker played by Linda Fiorentino. Her mission, stop the two from making it to New Jersey.

She receives help from a number of heavenly beings. Alan Rickman, who plays the voice of god and looks terribly out of place at times, guides Bethany on her path. She also receives assistance from Rufus, the thirteenth apostle, played by Chris Rock. Two "prophets" - recurring characters Jay and Silent Bob (Jason Mewes and Kevin Smith) - also help her on her way.

If the plot seems rather shallow, well, it is. The film plods along to its inevitable climax without accomplishing much.

As a result of the heavy-handed script, the film loses steam quickly. It is further hindered by the pres-

Lori Line Arranges Powerful Christmas

David M. Johnson

Staff Writer

If you attend only one Christmas concert this year, see Lori Line and her pop chamber orchestra Nov. 29 at the Music Hall. Don't let her sensual, sophisticated appearance fool you. Lori Line will knock your socks off. Guaranteed.

For those of you who have never seen Line before ... well, just how can I explain her show?

This is not your father's Christmas concert.

Lori Line is a new age pianist/arranger who delivers with more style than Gucci and greater energy than ConEd. Her concert is two hours of classical favorites stirred with a little swing, and little blues, and two heaping helpings of pure, unadulterated, heart-pounding jazz.

Accompanying Line on stage is the pop chamber orchestra, 12 of the world's best musicians. Audience favorites include Bruce Kurnow who wails on harmonica, Jose James on glow-in-the-dark African drums, and Kenni Holmen on the down-and-dirty sax.

To prove further this is not your ordinary Christmas show, Line's group trots out everything from ancient bagpipes to renaissance recorders to banjos, cellos, French horns and Irish whistles. And all kinds of costumes, from medieval English court, futuristic space suits, zoot suits from the 1920s, flash from the 1980s and Line herself in Jack Edwards originals.

As Lori Line fans know, the music is exceptional, but the craziest part of the show comes right after intermission. Line walks on stage with a large pad of paper and invites the audience to yell out its favorite

System of a Down Not a Commercial Band

Brandon Pappas

Staff Writer

In today's here today gone tomorrow world of radio, it's hard for bands to get radio airplay and maintain it.

With rock and roll radio clinging onto the usual airplay staples like the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Rage Against the Machine and Bush, how is a new band supposed to survive in today's scene?

The Los Angeles aggressive metal/funk/rock act System of a Down seems to have the answer. Constant touring, playing shows anywhere at any time and self-managing your own band were the keys that unlocked System of a Down's future.

Even though signing a record deal and playing large area size venues were goals the band set out for, achieving mass radio airplay was something that surprised the four-piece band.

"Our band is not a commercial band, it could be one, but it's not one. We write songs for being songs, not for being on the radio," bassist Shavo Odadjian said.

The band's breakthrough single "Sugar" may not sound like your typical radio-friendly track. SOAD singer Serj

Tanian uses full range of his voice when he goes from a high pitched squeal to a dark and bass-filled roar. "Sugar's" bass lines often change tempo along to the snapping of drummer John Dolmayan's snare drum. Add the high octane guitar style of Daron Malakian and you have the makings of a metal song that challenges the ear to keep up with the obscure, yet catchy, song.

The success of SOAD reaches beyond musical talent.

The four-piece act also shares the pride in its Armenian heritage. Odadjian comes from Armenia while Dolmayan and Tanian were born in Lebanon. Malakian shares the band's common nationalism, but is a native of Hollywood, Calif.

The band grew up in the same circles and around the Armenian heritage in California.

Not only is the band making a statement with its unique sound, it is talking loud and saying something with its politically charged lyrics.

The bands music and sound draws from a lot of influences. While Odadjian does admit that much of his musical

Private Eyes Directorial Debut for Stewart

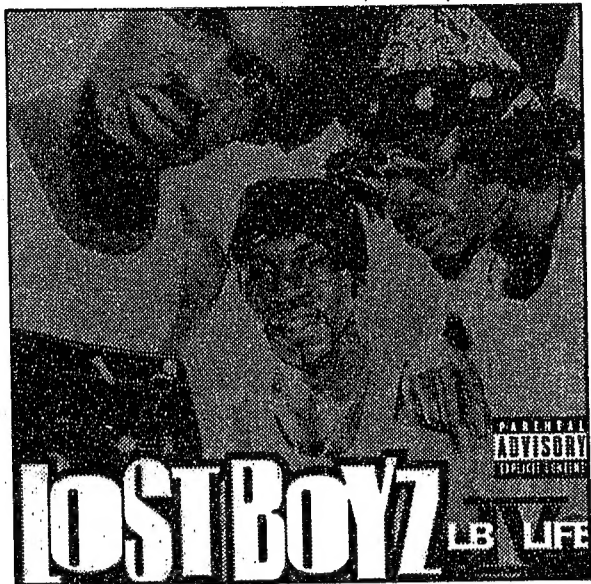

This season's second production from UNO's theater department starts today with the upbeat comedy "Private Eyes." "Private Eyes," written by Steven Dietz and directed by Jennifer Stewart, is a lively five-person ensemble piece that blurs the lines between fiction and reality. "Private Eyes" is a story that provides many twists and turns. The story of "Private Eyes" involves a married couple, Matthew and Lisa, and the problems they face with the lies they tell. The show opens tonight, will run through Saturday, and then returns for final performances Dec. 1-4. For tickets, call the UNO theater box office for ticket information at 554-2335.

CD Reviews by Enyi Emesih

Lost Boys "Lost Boys IV Life" (Universal Records)

The LB posse is back, with its third album. It was a long time in the coming, but straight up, it was worth the wait. It's surreal to hear the late Freaky Tah on vocals with the ever-eloquent Mr. Cheeks. Great listening here, but don't look for another one of those anthems like from their earlier work. "Lost Boys IV Life" possesses a clear flow with nice beats to match. Check the track "Let's Roll Dice" and "New York City War Call," these are what I consider to be the best cuts on the album. One thing though, most of these songs do sound alike, regardless of how pleasant they are on the ears. Freaky Tah does sound in good shape, lyrically. As for subject matter, there is a level of sincerity that can be appreciated, still those materialistic storylines come in to play especially on "Cheddar." Great come back effort on the whole, if you can handle the repetition, then you'll do just fine.

Ideal "Ideal" (Virgin Records)

Ideal may be the name of the group, but it is certainly not the ideal CD to take on a very long road trip. This group steps on every single cliché from production styles to guitar licks, ala usher on "Things You Can't Do." Their actual singing is pleasant, at best. There is no originality here, none at all. The first single, "Get Gone," sounds like a Ginuwine bit, very similar jerky beats. What destroys the track "Creep Inn," a good song with potential to soar, was sampling of the opening string section from the Jackson's 1980 opus "Heart Break Hotel/This Place Hotel." The one stand-out on this set is "Jealous Skies," a mid-tempo cut that I hope they push as a single. I am terribly disappointed in "Ideal" because I kept listening for that thing that would define the band, and it just isn't there. Lyrically I am heartbroken because the material does not carry the meat to match these pleasant voices. If you believe in giving people a chance this is the CD for you. If you're looking for great music, don't even bother.

Meshell Ndegeocello "Bitter" (Maverick Records)

Her third album to date proves that the talent of this artist is genuine and definitely no fluke. This set shows another side to her already diversified repertoire, as opposed to her first album "Plantation Lullaby." Ndegeocello's first disc featured hits like "If that's your Boyfriend," "Dreadlocks" and "Outside your Door" (whose piano arrangement was sampled on the very popular Brian McKnight ballad "Anytime"). This set is mellow and very soothing. Her lyrics, as always, are very strong and the music is simple with no lush arrangements to take away the vibe she's putting out. Actually, this album might very well go on to be the most slept on album this year. "Bitter" has great memorable moments like "Satisfy," "Faithful" and her cover of Jimi Hendricks' "May this Be Love." There are also instrumental moments found in the singles "Adam" and "Eve." There is nothing at all wrong with this album, a great album to listen to and also own.

Amyth "The World is Ours" (Warner Brothers)

These cats remind me in a very twisted way of what it would be like if New Edition and Boys II Men had a baby. Can you feel it? I'm sure you can. They can sing, bring the funk and all that other stuff. It's almost scary sometimes, it feels like I'm listening to Shawn from Boys II Men and the lead singer from 112. We all know that most R&B groups sound like one another. They copy phrasing, mood and that extreme need to have those special effects from the movie the "Matrix" in their videos. Along comes this group with a vibe that I can safely say puts them apart from the rest, a good-time feel that shows that their talent is genuine. Apart from that, they are basically speaking the same language as everyone else. Their messages preach sex and how good they are at it. (Would the fact that they have LL. Cool J as a mentor have anything to do with songs. She jots them down, sits at her piano and forms them all into a 20-minute medley. Two years ago in Omaha, she blended "Linus and Lucy" with "The Nebraska Fight Song," "In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida" and "Chopsticks."

One of the highlights of each concert is the appearance of guest vocalist Robert Robinson. He cradles the audience in his arms with his gospel voice, then shoots them through the heavens with more power than one mere man should be allowed to own. He alone is worth the price of admission.

Horoscopes by Madame Zora

Scorpio (Oct.24 - Nov.21)

Happy Birthday! The day has finally come. You're one year older than you were before and next birthday you will be a year older than you are now. Have a good one and may all those crazy birthday wishes come true.

Sagittarius (Nov.22 - Dec.21)

Your Roman ancestors are subconsciously calling you. Go through your closet and search for a clean white bed sheet. Wear it like a toga. A leaf headpiece will give it a classic look. Wear something underneath it, it is really windy out.

Capricorn (Dec.22 - Jan.19)

Who's afraid of Virginia Woolf? This question will incessantly plague you. Who is Virginia Woolf? Why should anyone fear her? And why does anyone care? Hey, wasn't she on "America's Most Wanted?"

Aquarius (Jan.20 - Feb.18)

Kid Rock has always confused you. You do not get what he is all about. Is there such thing as a rapping cowboy? Virtual reality. Whatever it is, you cannot seem to get the song out of your head — "... cowboy baby!"

Pisces (Feb.19 - Mar.20)

Your power color is fluorescent orange. You have the urge to be noticed this week and there is no better way to accomplish this than with a pair of fluorescent orange cargo pants. Top it off with a silver sombrero for a guaranteed effect.

Aries (Mar.21 - Apr.19)

Aries guy, your ideals have always been unattainable. You want a girl who meets your height expectations, your weight expectations, has straight teeth and has a perfect nose. Give it up. Aries girls, take whomever you get. You have faced that fact that even near-perfect men do not exist.

Taurus (Apr.20 - May 20)

This week is National Taurus Aggressive Week. Release the raging bull from inside of you. Charge at everyone with all the aggressiveness you have stored up. Try the "Waterboy" visualization method and let it rip.

Gemini (May 21 - June 21)

You find yourself faking a stomach ache to avoid going out with your friends, and you act like you love seafood just to carry on a conversation with someone you do not know. It is all in your star history. Your share your star with Sir Laurence Olivier, Judy Garland and Marilyn Monroe. Take a bow to everyone.

Cancer (June 22 - July 22)

This week your years of research on Mariah Carey's music are complete! You have got your conclusion and proven your hypothesis. You have discovered that all her music sounds exactly the same and that you just wasted a lot of time because everyone already knew that.

Leo (July 23 - Aug.22)

A guy named Rob will appear wherever you go. Be polite, give him a smile and talk to him. Ask him all your questions, for he holds the answers. Do not be frightened by his flashing gold capped tooth.

Virgo (Aug.23 - Sept.22)

Grecian gyros are the most delicious food on this Earth and this week you will smell them everywhere. This smell will lure you away from everything. You will lose all your friends and fail all your classes. Can you smell them?

Libra (Sept.23 - Oct.23)

You have been abducted by mutant cheese-eating mice. They threaten to feed you to their mutant banana tree if you do not give them the recipe for cheese. Behold the power of cheese.

SYSTEM: Opening for Limp Bizkit

influences were gothic, metal and early hair bands, the band eventually began listening to everything from rap to folk music.

"As I grew, my mind grew in music. I started opening up to less heavier bands, but who were still great, like the Beatles and Bob Dylan," Odadjian said.

Odadjian, who will sometimes be found spinning records and mixing tracks at raves in the Los Angeles area, feels the whole band has too much influence to classify into one category.

The accumulation of styles is found on the band's debut self-titled release. Released of American/Columbia Records, System of a Down's record was released in June of 1998.

Even though the record did not spawn instant success, it has been building a strong fan base — a base that Odadjian feels is more important than a radio single or new-found overnight fans.

"We wanted to be a band where if you know our band, you know our album and you know our live act. You know us a band and you're a core fan," Odadjian said.

System of a Down travels to the Omaha Civic Auditorium on Nov. 21 and is opening for Limp Bizkit. Odadjian has a word of advice for concert goers who plan to attend the sold out show.

"For all those people who are going to be there early are going to be talking about it for a long time," Odadjian said.

DOGMA: Script Lets Down

ence of Smith regular Jason Lee as a muse gone wrong and his evil cronies. These characters only serves as a filler for the slower parts of the movie.

Every actor seems bored with the script. Fiorentino is relegated to having a confused look on her face throughout the film. Only several scenes does she get to show some real emotion.

Alari Rickman may have the most believable character in the film, but even his performance is below par. Not even Chris Rock, who is outrageous in any role, can bring life to his character. Instead, he acts as a moral compass for Bethany.

The cast of regulars can't do much with the script either. Jason Lee is totally out of place in the movie. Matt Damon shows a little life as Loki, the Angel of Death, but Ben Affleck simply does nothing with his character.

Making a film about religion is a delicate procedure, and unfortunately, Smith hits many wrong notes. When he should go for the tender, he gets woefully immature. And although he ends the film with a message of warmth and love, the blood bath that takes place beforehand is totally inappropriate.

Smith does little exploring of the catholic faith. As a result, the film seems to go on with no purpose. And instead of being controversial, "Dogma" just turns out to be uninteresting.

Mavs Travel To Take on Buckeyes

Brian Brashaw
Staff Writer

What is a Buckeye, anyway? Maybe when the UNO hockey team comes home from their weekend series with the Ohio State Buckeyes we'll have an answer. Until then be content knowing the Mavericks are carrying a five game unbeaten streak on the road with them.

The Mavericks are in a good position heading into their upcoming schedule, taking their five game streak with them, UNO is about to play possibly the easiest part of their schedule this year.

The Mavericks, who have moved from last to seventh in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association during the streak, head to play an Ohio State team that is in the conference cellar. The struggling Buckeyes are 1-8-0 in the CCHA and are looking to validate the fourth place finish they were picked to have in the preseason. They must now face a UNO team that is riding a home-stand high. After dropping their opening series to still unbeaten Michigan State, the Mavericks have not lost at home since. The victims include Notre Dame who was an NCAA Tournament entry last year, and a Western Michigan team that ranks third in the CCHA.

Despite their rough start, Coach Kemp is taking any precautions with the Buckeyes.

"Ohio State is very unsettling. Even though they have been struggling out of the gate this year, their talent and experience makes them extremely dangerous," he said.

Although Ohio State has the biggest arena in college hockey at 17,500, attendance has been around 4,000 at the Value City Arena and may be less this weekend as Ohio State plays Michigan in football, and basketball season is just underway.

CCHA Online Release on UNO:

The Mavericks' five-game unbeaten streak is the second best in the program's history behind an eight-game streak where UNO went 6-0-2 from Jan. 24, 1998 until Feb. 27, 1998. • Nebraska Omaha had a season high 43 shots on goal against WMU on Sat and a team low five penalties for 10 minutes. • JR F Jason White has scored points (3-4) in four of the last five games. SR F Jeff Edwards has scored a goal in UNO's last three series, all of them coming on Saturdays. • After starting the season 1 for 29 on the power play through it's first four games, UNO has bounced back producing at least one power play in each of its last four games (6 for 21). The Mavs have given up only two power play goals in the last five games, killing off 24 of 26 opponent chances. • SR G Kendall Sidoruk is unbeaten in his last five starts. In that span, he has averaged 24.8 saves and posted a 2.67 goals against average and a .899 save percentage.

After the Ohio State road trip, UNO will take a week off to rest up for Alaska-Fairbanks who will be waiting at the 'Bullpen' on December 3rd and 4th.

The Mavericks could carry a nine game head of steam into the toughest part of the season. Their schedule from Dec. 10th to Jan. 15th is one nobody in college hockey wants. UNO will play six top of the top 25 programs in the nation. This list consist of four of the top five teams including No. 4 Michigan, No. 5 Wisconsin, No. 3 Michigan State, and depending how they fair in the Badger Showdown they could play No. 1 North Dakota.

Goalie Kendall Sidoruk leads the Mavs, who are on a five-game non-losing streak, into the Value City Arena at Ohio State University. The Mavs are currently rated seventh in the CCHA and are looking to move up. Photos by Steve Houlton.

Mavericks Catch Dreambuilders 82-81

David M. Johnson
Staff Writer

Sophomore guard Corey Hahn popped for 16 points and sophomore forward Al Lainio added a double-double (15 points, 12 rebounds) as the UNO men's basketball team outlasted the Dreambuilders 82-81 Monday night.

The Dreambuilders, a semi-pro team from Des Moines, entered the game with a 5-5 record after having defeated University of Nebraska-Kearney 103-102. They boasted a roster filled with former Division I, Division II and JUCO All-Americans. Levant Williams, Northwest Missouri State, led all players with 27 points. Shawn "Shakey" Harrington, also from NWMSU, contributed 14 from the shooting guard position, including 4-7 from beyond the arc.

UNO held a 37-34 halftime margin thanks in large part to the return from the injured list of senior forward Mike Foltynski (11 points). "Mike is a high-energy guy," Coach Kevin Lehman said. "He's our emotional leader. I thought he played extremely well."

The Mavs jumped out to an eight-point lead midway through the second half, but a run by the Dreambuilders erased that deficit.

Patrick Voss nailed a three-point shot at the three-minute mark to give UNO the advantage again. Still, the endgame was a matter of lead changes and free throws.

With 18 seconds to play, Dreambuilders point guard Jesse James stripped the ball away from Gary Morgan and scored, giving the visitors an 81-80 edge.

After a strategy-filled time out, the Mavs moved down the court, Morgan finding Lainio posting across the key. Lainio caught the pass, turned, and drilled a 10-foot jumper. UNO moved ahead 82-81 with 5.5 seconds left. An out-of-control lob by Harrington at the buzzer rimmed out.

"We work on situation plays like that (Lainio's winning shot) every day in practice," Lehman said. "To have success like this gives us a lot of confidence."

UNO begins regular-season action 2 p.m. Sunday when it hosts the UNK. UNK returns two starters from a squad that finished 24-7 a year ago and ranked No. 24 in Division II. Back is guard Anthony Harris (13.3 points per game) and forward Lindley Thompson (7.3 ppg, 4.6 rebounds per game).

The Lopers are coached by Tom Kropp who has posted a 10-year record of 183-81.

Mav Wrestlers Move to No. 1 With Win At Open

David M. Johnson
Staff Writer

UNO's excellent showing last Sunday at the Iowa State-Harold Nicols Open in Fort Dodge, Iowa, vaulted the team to a No. 1 ranking in the Division II polls and prepared it for Saturday's home event, the Ryan Kaufman-Glen Brand Open, the nation's largest collegiate wrestling meet.

The biggest surprise at Sunday's Iowa State Open for Head Coach Mike Denney was the performance of unranked Maverick Zach Stalder (174 pounds) who won all four of his matches and took first place in his weight division.

UNO's Mack LaRock (125 lbs) and Alan Cartwright (157 lbs) both grappled to 4-1 second-place marks.

Bronzes went to Mavs Peter Koster (141 lbs) and Burt Bohaboj (165 lbs), each racking up impressive 6-1 records.

Thirty-one Maverick grapplers competed at the event, combining for 73 wins and 57 losses.

UNO will host the annual Ryan Kaufman Open Saturday at the Sapp Fieldhouse. This event will bring in 525 wrestlers from 27 teams in 10 states. Division I schools scheduled to appear are: No. 1 Iowa State, No. 2 Iowa, No. 3 Minnesota, No. 8 UNL and No. 15 Northern Iowa. Division II schools attending the meet include: No. 2 South Dakota State, No. 8 Ft Hays State, No. 9 UNK, No. 12 Central Missouri State, No. 16 St. Cloud State and No. 18 Chadron State.

The non-scored meet begins at 9 a.m.

Mav Divers Hope To Jacknife Jackrabbits

David M. Johnson

Staff Writer

Coming off a record-setting performance last weekend against South Dakota State, Head Coach Todd Samland and the UNO swimming and diving team return to the school of the crime this weekend. They head north for a repeat engagement Friday in a dual against the same SDSU squad, and follow that Saturday with an appearance at the Jackrabbit Invitational.

UNO freshman Breann Haney led the Mavs to a 167-42 victory over South Dakota State Nov 12 at the Health, Physical Education and Recreation building. She set a school record in the 1,650 freestyle, swam to a personal best in the 500 freestyle, and paced the 400 freestyle-relay team ... all resulting in UNO victories.

Divers Aja Wurth (sophomore) and Kim Carder (freshman) set NCAA Division II qualifying marks in the one-meter diving event.

Freshman Alissa Wysuph also set a national qualifying time in the 1,650 freestyle, finishing second to Haney.

The Mavs are 6-3 on the season. Their next home meet will be Dec. 17-19, the UNOmaha Invitational.

Turman Has Football In His Blood

JJ Rider

Staff Writer

Deion Sanders and Kordell Stewart are both football players who play more than one position. UNO's slash is Seth Turman.

Turman started out the season as a wide receiver. After Curtis Miller departed, he was asked to go to quarterback behind Kwanzi Watts. As the season wore on Turman was returning kickoffs and punts.

Turman though is used to playing other positions. At Wahoo Neumann High School, Turman played quarterback, safety and special teams.

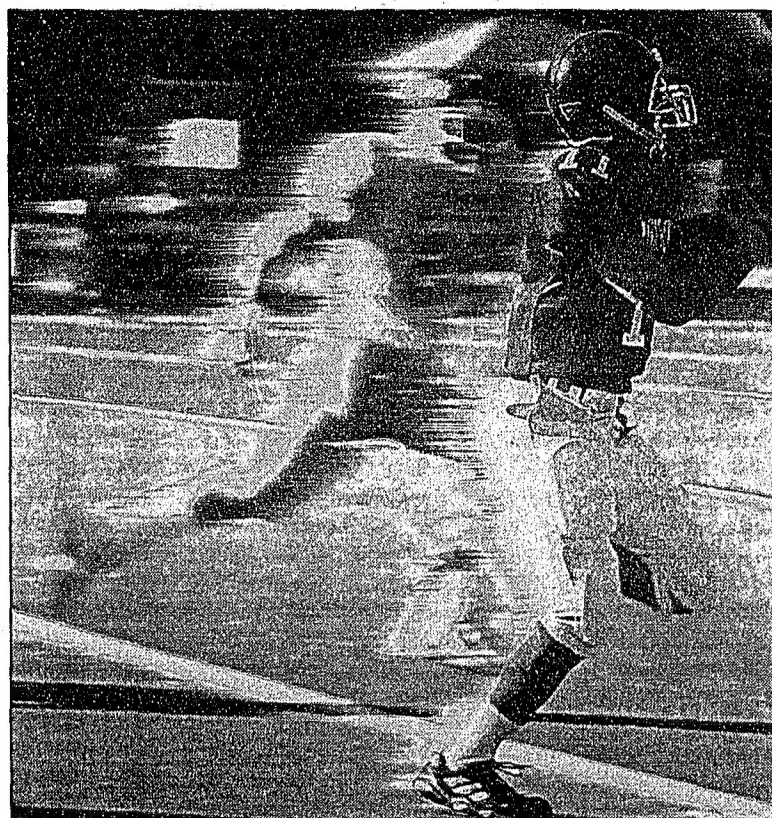

"Playing other positions is something I am used to," Turman said. "It gives me a opportunity to create big plays."

Turman is use to success on the football field. In Wahoo, Turman was awarded the Fremont Tribune player of the year and was second team all-state as a quarterback. The sophomore proved against North Dakota that he was ready for the challenge of being a starting quarterback. Turman moved the team to two offensive touchdown drives and capping the second off with a 20-yard scamper for a touchdown. His teammates were impressed with how he played in his first start at quarterback.

"Seth Turman was a warrior," offensive lineman Chris Bober said. "He played hard and showed great leadership."

Turman believes his strength is in his quickness.

"My speed is important for the offense we run," Turman said. "I just have to utilize it to the best of Quarterback Seth Turman moved from receiver at the beginning of the year to ending the year starting under center. Turman played QB, safety and special teams in high school.

my ability and the rest of it will fall in place."

The secondary education major is anxious to compete for a starting position next year. "With a few quarterbacks coming back next year it will be competitive for the starting job. But hard work will make me develop into a complete player." Besides Watts, Turman will have to compete with University of Nebraska transfer Jay Runtz for playing time.

Turman this year has returned a punt return for a touchdown and has rushed for over 200 yards. Against North Dakota he had 140 yards on 19 carries.

Turman has football in his blood. His father was his high school coach and his older brother was a quarterback for the Cornhuskers.

"What I learned from years of playing is to know the scheme of football, be mentally prepared and to be able to check off plays and use audibles."

Peanut Gallery

- From the "Stupid Crooks" file: A 58-year old man being held in Lincoln on suspicion of criminal mischief attempted to escape by hitting Officer Alvin Banks in the arm and running down the hall. The only problem is Officer Banks is former-Husker inside linebacker Alvin Banks. The crook was tackled and quickly brought under control. Hey stupid — next time you want to escape from a police officer, make sure he's a former-Hawkeye linebacker ... they can't stop anybody.

- All-NCC props to Tracy Ankeny, Nikki Mastny and Bethany Tygert who were named to the All-Conference volleyball team. Krista Niezwaag earned honorable mention status. Ankeny was also named NCC Player of the Week after blasting 54 kills against Augustana and South Dakota State.

- Lawrence Phillips will NEVER be a 49'er again. Word comes that former-Husker and current 49'er running back coach, Tom Rathman told Head Coach Steve Mariucci that he was so sick of Phillips' lack of work ethic, he would resign if Phillips was brought back.

- CBS sports broadcaster Sean McDonough will be the featured speaker Jan. 20 at the OSA Midwinter Sports Banquet to be held at the Holiday Inn Central. Tickets for the banquet can be purchased by calling Tim Schmad at 330-0110.

- Ouch! The Mavs hockey team is winning, but at a cost. Out indefinitely are senior Josh Lampman (wrist injury), junior James Chalmers (shoulder), and sophomore Kyle O'Keefe (shoulder).

- For all you draftniks out there who believe, as I do, the most important date on the calendar is the first day of the NFL Draft, let the juices flow — Mel Kuiper's draft analysis book hits the bookshelves tonight!

- The NCC women's basketball preseason coaches poll is out and UNO is expected to finish in fourth place in the conference. The Mavs received 69 total points in the vote, including one second-place and one third-place vote. Non-conference action starts tonight. Conference battles begin Jan 2.

Preview Our Emerging Artists! ON SALE NOW @ Homer's!

CHEVELLE
Point #1
$12.88 CD

Chevelle is a beautiful and brutal musical animal. The three-piece band is as adept at creating a gorgeous flowing moment as they are of kicking in a dead-bolted door. The band's debut album showcases the dynamic rhythms and melodies of the Chicago-based band. Relying on riffs, rhythms and melody, Point #1 takes listeners on a ride that leaves them frantic, fanatic and begging for air.

SIMON JOYNER
The Lousy Dance
$11.88 CD

Simon Joyner is a rare singer/songwriter able to pen highly literate, emotionally resonant songs without a hint of affectation or overplayed earnestness. (Colin Helms) Joyner's 6th full-length recording, is arguably his most cohesive and focused effort to date. The band is sparse and stark, and one hears additional influences of early Randy Newman, and more.

GUANO APES
Proud Like a God
$11.88 CD

In 1996, Guano Apes won Viva TV's "Local Heroes" competition, which secured them a deal with Germany-based GUN Records. PROUD LIKE A GOD was released and Guano Apes performed at every major European music festival with successful American artists like Offspring, Aerosmith, and Lenny Kravitz. "Open Your Eyes" is the first single.

JARS OF CLAY
If I Left The Zoo
$12.88 CD

IF I LEFT THE ZOO, is a rare blend of innovation, artistry and simple, good natured fun. The band's distinctive style shines through on a project that genuinely captures the total personality of Jars of Clay like never before.

COLUMBIA
SYSTEM OF A DOWN
System Of A Down
$12.88 CD

Described by Kerrang Magazine as a "thrilling mix of Middle Eastern folk and Sepultura-style budgeon," System Of A Down's members are of Armenian descent, raised in Southern California. Since formation, the band has built a hard-core following that originated in Los Angeles due to their incredible live shows.

CALVIN RICHARDSON
Country Boy
$9.88 CD

Calvin Richardson has all the ingredients to qualify for admittance into an ever-growing set of young authentic urban storytellers and his debut album is his approved and authorized soul-filled passport. Includes an outstanding duet with K-Ci, "I'll Take Her" and contributions from Chico DeBarge and Monifah.

MOLLYS YES
Wonderworld
$9.88 CD

With a blend of progressive pop melodies with a modern rock edge, Mollys Yes has found the right formula for success. Building on the solid foundation that has already been established in their home region of Tulsa, Oklahoma, Mollys Yes will be the next big thing to hit radio.

STROKE 9
Nasty Little Thoughts
$9.88 CD

"Stroke 9's songs are delicious concoctions; equal parts hook-filled melodies, brawny harmonies and brainy lyrics - finely crafted storytelling that's alternately hilarious and heart-breaking. Nasty Little Thoughts is perfect summertime, life-loving, drive-too-fast-in-your-convertible music. Listen with the top down." -San Francisco Examiner

JIMMIE'S CHICKEN SHACK
Bring Your Own Stereo
$12.88 CD

In 1999, Jimmie's Chicken Shack returned to the studio to record their follow-up LP. The album features an array of new sounds, which reveals the growth that has taken place in their song-writing and playing. New gems such as "Do Right," "Trash," and "Oow" show the band at their most playful and melodic, coyly schmoozing their contemporaries.

THE ENCLAVE
DRAIN STH
Freaks of Nature
$12.88 CD

With music both powerfully raw and profoundly confessional, Drain STH represents the hard rock and heavy metal scenes that are omnipresent in their native country of Sweden, offering music fraught with fierce energy as well as melodic hooks. The bands new release sees them taking their forcefully passionate sound to the next level.

local
VARIOUS
Christmas Tracks Too
$11.98 CD

Including tracks from Mulberry Lane, Compost, Five Story Fall, Echo Farm and more. A portion of the proceeds from CHRISTMAS TRACKS TOO will go to the Nebraska Humane Society.

local
STATUS STATE
Under Sky
$11.98 CD

UNDER SKY, the newly released debut album from The Status State establishes the young band as the area's next breakout group. A wide range of sound, yet with a flavor distinctly their own, gives them a unique edge. The album provides us with a work of music that gives this Lincoln band an opportunity to move beyond our local region.

local
PRAIRIE CATS
Big One
$14.98 CD

"tight and punchy...braiding traditional and modern swing, big band jazz, rockabilly and pop, with a serious brass presence." "...would sound at home on any Omaha radio stations that played..." Jump Jive and Wail!...last summer." -Jim Minge OMAHA WORLD HERALD

local
BRIGHT EYES
Every Day and Every Night
$7.98 CD

The next singer/songwriter of true importance to emerge from the American indie music scene. This 5-song EP continues to showcase Conor's talent at combining well-crafted, insightful lyrics with haunting music and melodies to produce songs that are manic, depressing, honest and inspiring.
